Prafullachandra Natwarlal BHAGWATI

Date of birth: 21 December 1921

Working language: English

Justice P.N. Bhagwati is one of the most distinguished jurists of India since its independence. He presided over the Supreme Court of India as its Chief Justice until his retirement. Under his leadership the Indian Supreme Court has developed comprehensive human rights jurisprudence for India. He, through creative interpretation, expanded the reach and context of human rights embodied in the Constitution. He developed the strategy of Public Interest Litigation with a view to making human rights meaningful for the large masses of poor and disadvantaged people. This is a strategy which has won admiration in many common law jurisdictions.

Justice Bhagwati is closely connected with a large number of NGOs, both in India and outside, and has been motivating and inspiring grass-roots human rights and development NGOs. He has organized a number of judicial colloquia in different parts of the Commonwealth on "Domestic Application of International Human Rights norms" for judges in the Commonwealth. He has also promoted and participated in numerous workshops of lawyers and judges on the subject of human rights organized by NGOs and was Chairman of the World Congress on Human Rights held in New Delhi in December 1990.

He has been a member of the Committee of Experts of the ILO since 1987. He has been the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the United Nations Human Rights Committee, and is currently a Member. The United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights had taken him as Regional Adviser for the Asia Pacific Region. He has also carried out several missions for the United Nations Centre for Human Rights, the Commonwealth Secretariat, and the International Commission of Jurists. His services have been utilized by several countries, including Mongolia, Cambodia, Nepal, Ethiopia, and South Africa in framing their Constitutions and particularly the chapters on human rights. He was a member of the Goldstone Commission of Inquiry in South Africa. He was also involved in finalizing the draft manual for training of judges in human rights prepared by the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights.

Justice Bhagwati has been particularly active in the area of women's rights. He has been the moderator and the main resource person for at least three judicial workshops of women judges for domestic application of international human rights norms in the jurisprudence of women's rights, one in Victoria Falls for African judges, the other in Hong Kong for Asia Pacific judges and the third in Guyana for Caribbean judges. He presided over the Peoples Tribunal for Violence against Women at the Vienna Human Rights congress. This Tribunal was organized by International Women NGOs.

He has been responsible for a considerable amount of work in the field of human rights and development among tribals, particularly tribal women in South and East India, and has provided leadership to the NGO, AWARE, in making 6,000 villages self-reliant. He is a household name amongst the poor and underprivileged sectors of Indian society.

Justice P.N. Bhagwati was responsible for making a large number of innovations with a view to providing access to justice to the poor and disadvantaged. He enlarged the doctrine of locus standi before the Supreme Court and the High Courts for vindicating the individual and collective rights of those who were denied access to justice on account of poverty or social or economic disability.

He at the same time worked successfully to build up an elaborate legal aid programme. He is widely regarded as the originator of India's legal aid programme, including setting up of legal aid camps in rural areas, working with NGOs, establishing legal aid clinics etc.

Numerous documentaries have been made on him and his work including one where he is one of six outstanding Indians on whose life the Indian TV has done a profile. He has been the most visible member of India's Judiciary since independence. His reputation and his impact, through his judicial and legal aid work, is so enormous that the public response has been quite phenomenal, e.g., a village where the tribal people benefited from his judgement, renamed the village after him calling it BHAGWATI PURAM.

He has championed the cause of workers and labourers. His thought provoking judgements on bonded and unorganized labour and child labour have resulted in various legislations and government schemes in improving their social and economic conditions. He is also involved in the programme of sustainable development and has been responsible for developing poverty jurisprudence in India.

His services have also been availed of by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. He was the Chairman of Eminent Persons Group for Study of questions relating to refugees in South Asia.

He has also been a member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague. He was also a member of the International Mediation Team with Henry Kissinger and Lord Carrington for mediation between Inkatha and ANC before the elections in South Africa. He was also a Member of the International Advisory Council of the World Bank for Legal and Judicial Reforms.

He is presently a member of the Human Rights Committee under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights of the United Nations. He is also the Honorary Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He is also the Honorary Member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

He is Chancellor of the Hyderabad University.

He is also Chancellor of Shri Lal Bahadur Shastri Rashtriya Sanskrit Vidyapeeth.

Mohamed Lamine FOFANA

Date of birth: 31 December 1943.

Place of birth: Bissikrima, Republic of Guinea.

Current position

Counsellor to the Minister of Justice. The Cabinet assists the Minister in implementing government policy in the area of justice. The counsellor plays an important role in implementing that policy through the professional activities described below.

Professional activities

At the ministerial level, management and coordination. In order to be effective, management and coordination at this level require at least two skills: first of all, that of a technical manager, which presupposes a good knowledge of the field in question. The choice of Mr. Fofana for this post was made on the basis of his authoritative experience at both levels of the Guinean judicial system and the supreme body for monitoring implementation of the law. Much of Mr. Fofana's work draws on that experience; the rest of his work involves specialized management, which requires the flexibility, creativity and maturity that are essential for management in a complex world.

Education

Trained as a judge at the Higher School of Administration of the Republic Guinea on the basis of an advanced degree in law from the Department of Economic Sciences and Management of Gamal Abdel Nasser Polytechnic Institute, Conakry, and postgraduate studies, mainly at the Bordeaux International School (France) and Clark Atlanta University (USA).

Other activities

1987-1992: Member of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights. Participated in the drafting of the initial report and subsequent periodic reports of the Republic of Guinea submitted to the Human Rights Committee.

Publication

Intérêts de la rédaction d'un rapport national en matière d'application du Pacte international relatif aux droits économiques, sociaux et culturels.
